LIVING ROOM

Fiona Barratt Interiors

DINING ROOM

Rachel Laxer Interiors

"My impulse was to create a space that's lively and fun, a place where you'd want to sit and have a conversation," says showhouse co-chair and creative director Rachel Laxer, whose dreamy dining room literally sparkles, thanks to Damien Hirst's limited-edition crystal butterfly panels for Lalique.

BEDROOM

Shalini Misra Ltd.

Interior designer Shalini Misra transported visitors to a luxury getaway in northern Africa, employing an earthy mix of red and gold, sumptuous fabrics, metallic accents, and a statement Fromental wallpaper that come together in what she calls a "romantic, yet modern space. The textures and colors make it hard to leave!"
